Liberal Candidate Wins Acadia Seat

J. A. McCall Retained With a Big Majority

The outcome of the struggle for the representative in the Provincial house for the Acadia constituency was quite a surprise to the Conservatives who had looked on this as one which would very probably be changed. All the returns are not in as yet, but at the time of going to press, J. A. McCall has a majority of three hundred and sixty-five.

Election Day in Oyen

In Oyen there was quite a large percentage of the voters turned out to vote, and lively interest was taken in the election both by the Liberal and Conservative supporters. Quite a large number of women took advantage of the franchise and came to the poll having fully made up their minds as to who they wanted to act as their representative in the provincial parliament.

There was a general feeling, prior to election day, that the independent candidate, Lorne Proudfoot would have had more votes polled in his favor, but it seems that the good seed sown by him did not bear much fruit. However, we believe he fought a good clean fight and had he had better organization probably better results would have been gained.

During the day the ladies of the Oyen Red Cross Society served lunch and ice cream in the Acheson hardware store. Their specialty for the day was Jonah and McCall Sundae. As a result of their efforts the sum of $50.00 was realized.

Conner Wins Light Heavy Weight Championship

The opportunity of seeing a wrestling match for the light heavy weight championship of Canada is seldom a privilege given to the community of a small town like Oyen, and quite a large number of enthusiastic sports turned out last Friday evening to witness the best match ever staged in Oyen, between May, of Young, Sask., and Conner of Essex.

Mr. Chas. L. Dalton was appointed referee, and when he stepped on the mat to introduce the men he was received with loud applause. Both men received an enthusiastic reception, after which May explained how he defeated Elkhart and won the light heavy weight championship of Canada.

Both men showed astonishing agility throughout the match. During the first twenty minutes May tried hard to throw his opponent but with no success. Conner's ability to

According to a prominent farm

Conner, winner of the Light Heavy Weight Championship of Canada, got out of tight corners was quite a surprise to May, and he was repeatedly applauded, and the efforts of both men kept the audience in intense excitement. After wrestling for about thirty minutes May began to lose faith in himself which showed that Conner was the better man and after defending himself for nearly forty-six minutes, Conner got May in his power and threw him in forty-seven minutes using a body scissor and half Nelson hold.

May, who acknowledged his defeat, said that he had no idea he was meeting such a man as Conner, and admitted that before he would guarantee to throw Conner it would be necessary for him to have at least three weeks training.

The referee then announced that Conner held the Championship for the light heavy weight of Canada.

Medicine Hat Stamped

The biggest four days of continuous entertainment ever staged in Western Canada will be the great Stampede at Medicine Hat on July 10-12 and 13. In addition to the Stampede with its bucking broncos, expert riders and ropers, cowboy races, bull-dogging and all the other sports of the ranching frontier days, there will be the annual agricultural and industrial exhibition, the dog show, the poultry show, a baseball tournament and every night the Elks are putting on a grand street carnival. The wickedest horses and the best riders in America will be there and it is expected 30,000 people will visit the fair to see them perform. Every provision is made to accommodate people and there will be no hold-ups in prices as all concessions and privileges are strictly regulated.

Valuable Circular Prepared by De-

Maxwell

The Maxwell is Built for Canadian Roads

You may have an idea that perhaps the road conditions which your car must face are more trying than in other sections of the country.

But the fact is that the Maxwell is built especially for your roads—no matter how bad they may be. Before even a single car is passed out by our shops it must stand tests that are many times more stringent than any difficulties you will encounter in your vicinity.

Our tests for reliability and general serviceability are much more efficient than any road test could possibly be. We know—that word is used literally—actually know what the Maxwell is going to do under it leaves our shops.

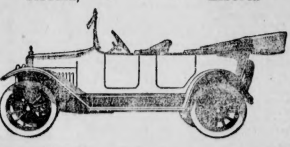

If you could see the large number of drop forgings, the splendid method of heat treating steels, and other features of construction that enter into the building of the Maxwell you would not have any fear regarding its sturdiness.

You may have hills. We know that the Maxwell will climb any hill you may have occasion to go over. You may have mud. The Maxwell is built to stand any possible strain it could be asked to stand in legitimate driving.

The Maxwell is built WITHOUT GUESSWORK—TO SUIT ALL ROADS—to suit your roads. In every part of the world it is giving perfect satisfaction.

General Letter to the Public from S. A. Miller & Co.,

GENERAL MERCHANTS

OYEN, ALBERTA, June 12th 1917

DEAR SIR OR MADAM:

We ask your attention for just a few minutes. We have some facts to state and we think you will be well repaid for reading them. We take the following from one of our Trade Journals. TEA Market continues firm with stocks in the country rapidly diminishing. The British Government have requisitioned all the shipping space on boats leaving Hong Kong and it is impossible to say when deliveries will be coming forth to relieve the situation.

SOAP—Further advance has been experienced in the markets recently and best posted authorities expect further advances.

RICE—The market is decidedly firm and some importing Millers in Canada have been forced to cancel contracts.

SALMON—Stocks in Jobber's hands of old pack salmon are rapidly being cleaned up and if the present rate of purchases continue there will not be any salmon available by the first of July. New pack cannot be on the market before September.

These are only some of the items we claim are good buying. Soap and Salmon especially. To-day's value of Sunlight and Dingman's Electric soap is 3 bars for 25c. We have a good stock of Swift's White Laundry Soap and we offer it till July 10th at a special price of 4 bars for 25c or 18 bars for a $1.00. Buy it your supply.

We cannot buy a one pound can of the BEST Salmon from the Wholesale to-day. Note the above on salmon. However we have a good stock and advise you to include your Summer's need in your next grocery Orders.

Our Wholesale Houses write: "Tens are going to jump any day. We have a limited supply of Ceylon Broken Orange Pekoe black tea in bulk. This is good value at 30c per lb, but we offer it to you in 5 lb boxes or over at 50c lb, get some and you will thank us for the tip inside three months. Here is something for the boys, with every ten pound order of this tea we will give you a pair of dandy Silts."

We have a heavy stock of Java sugar syrup. Roger's golden in 10 lb. pails is to-day $1.15. We offer Java Syrup in 10 lb pails at 80 cts.

LARD is high and is going higher. As an authority has said, by the end of Summer there will not be enough lard in the country to grease a frying pan. Don't be afraid to buy lard.

While we do not look for any higher prices on Canned Fruits and Vegetables, we feel satisfied that before many days some of the best lines will be off the market. Our stock of these goods is large.

If you want to save money and be sure of getting the supplies that you will need, sit down to-day and make out a list of your requirements and bring it to us. We'll fill it promptly and correctly and we'll save you money.

FOOTWEAR—In this we might say we are behind the times. Nothing has advanced in price more than leather. We did some good buying in shoes sometime ago, and shoes we have on our shelves to-day are fully 25 to 40 per cent below today's value. Thus we say we are behind the times when it comes to keeping up with the prices. Our lines are well known Williams, Sterling, and Amherst for work boots, Hart's for Men's fine wear, Bell's shoes for Ladies, and Enslips for Children.

CLOTHING—We have a Special Bargain to offer in Ready-to-wear Clothing. We are heavily stocked and it won't be long until our Fall Clothing will be coming in, and we must make room for it. So for the next thirty days we offer a straight discount of fifteen per cent off. These goods are bought right, so this discount means something. The same discount applies to Tweed Pants. Come in and look them over your price is 10c.

OVERALLS are excellent buying. Manufacturers are asking $1.75 a pair at shipping point. Our price is 1.00. Socks or Jumpers the same.

Space will not permit us to give details on the many things we have for the Ladies. We invite you to look over our stock. It is our endeavor at all times to buy the best Prints, Muslins, Flannels, etc. Also a good range of Middy Waists and Ladies' White Wear. A large shipment of the D. & A. Corsets just opened.

We wish to thank you for past favors and assure you of our desire to serve you in the future with the best of goods and service. We remain

Yours very truly

Room Nineteen

FLORENCE WARDEN
WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
LONDON, CALCUTTA, AND TROMA

At the worst, now, the boy would be in her care, whatever might be the result. "And she says I'm to stay," said the boy, "and I don't know how Papa, came was shut up by Mrs. Lowndes."

"I'll forgive you, Miss," said Ciprian, as he drew the boy between his arms and fondled him with his right hand. "I'll forgive you anything for having the good taste to run away from me—just as I did—without arching over the boy's head at the end of the standing bell—'to Miss West.'"

Julius stared thoughtfully up into his father's face.

"Papa," he said, "why don't you make Mahin live with you and me—always?"

Ciprian's eyes travelled slowly from the boy to the woman once more, and found such a longing shadow on her face that Mahin, turning abruptly away with agony in her heart, retreated towards the door, leaving father and son alone together.

Out of the confusion and misery she was suffering from, good reason for one thing to be done at once: she must telegraph to Lord Moorhampton to come to the rescue of the safe arrival of Julius, saying nothing about his father.

She knew that the vicount would certainly travel to London immediately on receipt of this message, and even in the house, he could be told everything. And perhaps, after all, things would not be so bad as they feared.

At the window, the vicount saw a little while he was ill, and in the meantime advice could be taken, and preparations made for his return. He was not a man who could be taken, and preparations made for his return. He was not a man who could be taken, and preparations made for his return.

Nothing, she felt sure, could happen to him now, and she was not a man who could be taken, and preparations made for his return. He was not a man who could be taken, and preparations made for his return.

Nevertheless, she could not but feel deeply anxious as to his account, and she thought that if she could see Lord Moorhampton, she would be in a position to face with him, before he came to face with him, before he came to face with him, before he came to face with him.

She even discovered that his son was under the same roof with himself and his grandson, they might believe in their concern, some plan of action, that at least, by consultation, they would know "where they were."

So she went herself to the telephone office, where she learned that the message would be delivered at Heath Hill on the following morning. And then, returning to the mansion, she found that the nurse had already, that Ciprian had been installed in Mrs. West's room, and that the doctor was gone.

Poor little Julius was curled up asleep on the sofa in the sitting room and only woke up in the afternoon.

allow himself to be undressed and put to bed again. On the following morning Mahin got an answer to her telegram, which was from Lord Moorhampton, who told her and announced that he was on his way to town.

In the meantime the good news had come from the sick room, and Ciprian had had a good night, so that his temperature had gone down to little above the normal, and that he had asked to see his son.

Julius, however, was musing up for the failures of the journey by a right's rest that extended well into the day, and when Lord Moorhampton arrived, Mahin was sitting alone in the sitting room.

She was very nervous on meeting him, but she had the satisfaction of seeing that he looked quite benevolent, and that, though there was gravity in his manner, there was no reproach.

"I see, Miss West, that you were the master to draw the boy away," he said when he had shaken hands with her.

"I'm very sorry, very sorry indeed, I never guessed—" she began.

He interrupted her.

"I'm sorry to hear that you are busy extending the rural system, and on the routes already established, in postal packages—eggs, butter, and so on. It is a very good thing, and I am sure you will do it quite nicely by mail. The cost is not so great as you think, and it is a very good thing, and I am sure you will do it quite nicely by mail."

"Go and bring her here then," said Mahin by the door, and dragged her across the floor to the bedside. Ciprian looked up, and spoke to her, but she was not unhappy, for that. And by gesture rather than by words, she told him to convey to him that the diagnosis of Julius was perfectly correct.

cases. "Cut them out," and stay only those that do not deal fairly. While some customers are unsatisfactory, there are others with whom it is a real pleasure to do business; courteous, punctual, and efficient, there are plenty of all in dealing with them. I know of one such who, on receiving poultry sent in, returned two cents a pound more, than the price asked, because the quality was so good, and another gentleman who paid three cents a pound for turkeys more than was asked, for the same reason. Little wonder there is satisfaction on both sides there. It was a pleasure for those buyers to show their appreciation in that way, and the farm woman could not fail to feel pleasure and encouragement, which might show itself in an extra pot of cream or some other dairy product in with the next order.

In trading, as in any other line of life, we should remember the Golden Rule: "Do to others as you would be done by"—and many of the present difficulties in marketing would disappear.

Swine Raising of Juniors

Plan Adopted in Saskatchewan to Stimulate Interest

Announcement has been made that the same competition for juniors to be held at the winter fairs this year to increase on eastern markets. There is a great field for the development of raising in western Canada, and the swine industry there is the link, progressive spirit of the west. The eastern dairy farmer might as well decide that his western neighbor will be his competitor in the future, with keener competition in his own eastern market than ever before. In one sense, this expanding industry of the west offers to the dairy breeder a new and great opportunity.

Western dairymen are already heavy buyers of the well bred dairy stock, both pure bred and grade, that is produced on eastern farms. This is a market that will increase immensely as dairying progresses in the west. And here we would like to sound a note of warning. There has been a tendency in the past to ship the calves to the London Chronicle, an old betting-book, preserved at Brook's Club contains an entry showing that in 1778 Fox gave Mr. Shirley ten guineas on the understanding that the Fox should receive 500 when a Turkey in Europe belonged to a western pure or power.

"I'm doing my best to get ahead," said the man, "but I know you need one," asserted Dolly.

Dairying in the West

Development of This Industry Making Great Strides

Until the last two or three years the attitude of the eastern dairy industry of the western provinces was one of benevolent interest. The eastern farmer had long been taught to regard the prairie provinces as a fruit province, that might gradually turn to beef cattle, but in which dairy farming would not find a home for several decades to come.

British Columbia, he regarded as a fruit province. Every year the eastern dairymen shipped car loads and car loads of butter and cheese for western consumption. Eastern dairymen looked on the west as a market that just naturally belonged to them. Now the easterner has received an awakening. The tables have been turned on him. Last year several car loads of butter were shipped from Alberta to Toronto, Ontario.

The quality upon examination proved to be better than that of good eastern butter. At the same time the eastern butter trade with the west is being seriously reduced in a time when it should be protected and improved by every possible means. The hundreds of miles of once excellent fishing and game lands, and game lands are turned into blackened ruins.

No camp fire should be left this year until it is "dead out." A few extra pots of water or spades of sand will make a difference. No fire should be set except among rocks or gravel near a bog or in leaves of needles. Throwing lighted tobacco or matches into the forest is conduct unwelcome only to the animal.

A Problem for Germans

Whether Germans are aware of it or not, they are themselves the saddest sort of victims of the German national policy. To liberate Germany from German misrule which would be possible only if Germans themselves would co-operate. We can not attempt it otherwise. The American German who seeks to protect the German nation from German misrule is the worst possible enemy of the German people—and perhaps their only enemy. Russians have shown how to meet Russian misrule; if Germans will similarly rise against German misrule they will find the whole world sympathetic. But if they will not, this solves the problem for themselves it cannot be solved by other nations. —The Living Church

Why He Ran

The bombing sergeant was accused of cowardice, but he was acquitted without a stir when he had told his story; here it is: "I am the bombing instructor, sir, and have always taught my men to count one, two, three, before throwing their bombs. During this practice, my engagement I pressed a young fellow into service, handed him a bomb and told him to count, three after pulling the pin. He drew it, started to count, and I ran, sir." —Canadian Hospital News

Woman Does Her Bit

There Has Never Been a Shortage of Women for National Service Work

The general sense of her fellow-countrymen then was that of Milton: "Nothing lovelier can be found in woman than to study household good." "Census" picture of the "Queen of the Garden" and girls and women. "Avery, Lily Lillian" seemed not far removed from common experience. Women have since inherited new kingdoms. In these war days the question is not to the millions of women is: "What can you do for your country?" The domestic work which broke her pride of place because such duties as the performs are vital and essential to the nation. But there are others. We now learn officially that "there has never been a shortage of women for national service." That is a very remarkable declaration. It bears testimony to the manner in which those who used to be described as "the gentle sex" have met the emergency.—London Daily Telegraph

Horrors of German Vandalism Will Never Be Forgotten

Powers of description fail when they are called upon to picture the destruction of beautiful and historic lands, waste in vandalism that threatens for nothing except the pleasure of destroying, and the annihilation of civilization prohibit one from even hinting at many of the horrors inflicted by the German conquerors upon both male and female, young and old among the inhabitants.

What will some day restore the devastated land to its fruitfulness, new buildings will replace some of those which have been destroyed and, so far as visualization is concerned, the destructive reign of the German will be forgotten, but never, so long as the human tongue can pass down the horrors of their grandchildhood.

A Car of Proven Quality

THE Ford car has been on the market twelve years, surely long enough to have proven its high quality. There is nothing experimental about it. Every part has stood the test of time and proven its stability with hard service. No other car has ever approached the durability records of the Ford.

No matter what price you pay for a car you cannot get one with a stancher chassis. Government Laboratory tests have shown that the different parts of the Ford car are superior to those in any other car. Ford Vanadium steel has never been equaled in strength.

If you want a car that can plow through deep mud, sand and gravel—that can cross fields, corduroy roads and ford streams—that can climb the steepest hills with ease—that will give the greatest mileage all year round with the least expense and care—then there is only ONE car for you—The Ford.
